Gather your materials. You will need some paper, a clip board, a marker and some sticky notes. Write out the sight words you want to work on.

Write the same words on sticky notes.

Put those sticky notes all over your house. Go over the list with your child. Have your child read through the list of words to you and offer support where they may need additional help. Let them begin hunting for the matching sight words.

Repeat as many times as your child is interested. Use the same words for about a week and add two to three new words each week when your child is ready. Occasionally mix in old words to ensure your child has not forgotten them. Change roles with your child and let him/her hide the words and you as the parent go on the hunt. Purposefully make mismatches to see if your child can provide the correction. Most importantly, HAVE FUN! ☺
